Decision To Be Made By Teenagers

Students attending Teen Town this Friday evening will decide how the organization will be financed, according to an advisory committee's decision this week.

The teenagers will be asked to choose between a ten cent weekly admission fee, a 25 cent monthly charge, or a combination of the two. Some income is necessary to pay recreation equipment and to offset depreciation.

Several other decisions were made after 200 high school students attended the initial meeting last Friday at the Legion Hall on Maple and Sixth, according to Miss Julie Hawkins, advisory committee chairman.

Since teenagers expressed little interest in governing the organization, the Teen Town will be operated by its Adult Council of nine and the advisory committee from the Westminster Disciple Student Fellowship, the founding group.

Last Friday's meeting also proved that no program is necessary, Miss Hawkins said. Teenagers are free to use the recreational facilities as they wish.

Miss Hawkins stressed that students from the entire county are welcome to attend the Teen Town. This Friday the Teen Town will again be open free of charge from 7 to 11 p.m. at the American Legion Hall.

Winners Of Bird Houses Are Named; Club Buys Wildlife

By Paul Bailey

The March 14 meeting of the Calloway County Conservation Club was called to order at 7:30 by president Paul Bailey. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. This was the meeting at which we had the judging of the bird houses in the contest sponsored by the club, for all of the Junior Conservation Clubs in the county. The bird houses had been neatly arranged on display in the court room of the County Court house.

The Mayor of Murray, George Hart along with the assistance of Ernest Clevenger Jr. judged the houses. J. B. McClain announced the winners as follows:

Lower Age, Martin: 1st, Jimmy Glen Rodgers, age 10, Lynn Grove, 2nd, Woody Herndon, age 11, Murray Training School, 3rd, Gerald Miller, age 9, Almo.

Upper Age, Martin: 1st, James Glen Rodgers, age 13, Murray Training School, 2nd, Tom Jones, age 12, Hazel, 3rd, Michael Parker, age 12, Hazel.

Lower Age, Wren: 1st, Woody Herndon, age 10, Murray Training School, 2nd, Ernie Rob Bailey, age 10, Murray Training School, 3rd, Jimmy Story, age 11, Lynn Grove.

Upper Age, Wren: 1st, Bob Kik, age 17, Murray High, 2nd, Mit Miller, Murray High.

Lower Age, Blue Bird: 1st, Ernie Rob Bailey, age 10, Murray Training School, 2nd, Jimmy Herndon, age 9, Almo, 3rd, Woody Herndon, age 11, Murray Training School.

Upper Age, Blue Bird: 1st, John Koertner, Murray High, 2nd, Mike Farmer, Murray High.

The winning bird houses will be displayed in show windows around the square. If you miss seeing the houses, you will miss a very nice group of artistically designed bird houses. The prize money will be awarded to the winning boys, at the March 26 meeting of the Conservation Club. This meeting will be a basket dinner affair starting at 7:00 p.m. with every member of the Club and all members of each Junior Club in the County, being urged to attend with their families. Just bring along a basket lunch, like we all have been used to doing at any church or other spread-together dinner.

The old business of the club consisted of reports from the various committees. The Coon committee chairman, Frank Wells, reported a total of 22 coon being caught alive in the refuge hunting. This makes a total of 26 coon that have been released in Calloway County since hunting season went out.

The rabbit committee reported they had not as yet found a place to purchase live rabbits. The quail committee reported that nearly 200 pair of adult Bob White quail were released in this county on March 13. These were pen raised quail and may be rather gentle, for a few days, so everyone is urged to keep their bird dog tied up for a few days. Also, try to keep old "Tom or Pans" full as possible and at home as much as possible because a hungry, roving house cat can make any kind of quail live hard.

For new business, a proposal was submitted by the executive board to purchase 15 coon and pay the express charges on them. After much discussion about where we can purchase live coon, Mr. Al Blum made a motion that the club accept the proposal concerning the coon and immediately order 15 female coon. The motion was seconded and passed. The order for the coon will be sent off this week to a Florida shipper, as we have several replies from letters of inquiry and the Florida shipper are the only ones with coon for sale.

The executive board also proposed to buy 5 dozen rabbits from any source, the rabbit committee could find. (Some sources letters are in the mail trying to find rabbit and an order will be sent as soon as a source of supply is located. During the discussion on rabbit restocking, Mayor Hart stated that he was an old rabbit hunter and would be glad to personally buy a few rabbits to be released along with the other club rabbits. The club wants to give its thanks to Mayor Hart for being interested in our restocking program. As we all know, Mr. Hart has belonged to our club for many years and never gets to go hunting, but occasionally lays a few "crappie" on the bank.

A list of last year's members that haven't joined the club this year was called off and several members present took a few from the list of personally contacted before our next meeting. We have at present almost 300 members and still want to make it over 500. If you are not a member at present, you should join now. Maybe you don't hunt or fish much but you could have some children or grand-children that might be very much of a hunter or fisherman. This is the main reason we in a real true frame of mind concerning club work and game conservation can't hunt on any particular form of hunting or fishing. You might not like to hear 3 or 4 good mouthed dogs put an old coon to running and tree him. You may not care to hear a good pack of Walkers warm up an old fox for a few hours. You might possibly not care for duck hunting, bait casting, begging for rabbits or any one of the other various kinds of hunting or fishing. But, there's one thing you don't want. That's the idea of any future grand boys or grand girls who might turn out to be a fox hunter, with no fox to run. They might be very interested in coon hunting with no coon to run. They could be very interested in any form of hunting even though their parents didn't care a bit for hunting or fishing. We don't even want to think of any little fellows looking back and saying or thinking, "Pappy, why didn't you shoot something for me to shoot or catch." Right now is the time the club needs you as a member. Anyone who wishes to join can see any of the present officers. You are always welcome at our meetings on second and fourth Monday nights at the Court House. You can call Paul Bailey at 1380-R and he will come to your house and pick up your membership dues.

Irish March Up Fifth Avenue

NEW YORK (AP) — The Irish, some 115,000 strong, marched up Fifth Avenue's Kelly green strip today in the nation's grandest St. Patrick's Day parade.

Millions more crowded the avenue to view New York's traditional tribute to St. Patrick, the saint said to have driven snakes from the verdant fields of Ireland.

"Emerald-blue" skies, some clouds, lots of sunshine, and fresh winds kept the green banners flying.

The grand parade filed for five hours past two official viewing stands. From the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Francis Cardinal Spellman, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen and other clergymen will watch. And at 84th St., Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Gov. Averell Harriman and hundreds of state and city officials saluted the marchers.

The 165th Infantry of the National Guard, the Fighting 68th, headed the parade. Behind the 165th came 56 battalions of marchers, made up of 182 groups.

A nostalgic bit of tradition will be missing. The 68-man Police Department band will not march for the first time in 40 years. They were disbanded last year.

Around the country the nation made similar observance of March 17.

State Cage Tournament On Full Scale

By JAMES HENNESEN

LEXINGTON (AP) — Full-scale fighting began today in Kentucky's 38th annual state high school basketball tournament, with one upset already recorded in last night's opening session.

Pikeville's Ralph Gilliam rang up 33 points to lead his Panthers to a 78 to 74 decision over favored Central City in last night's second game, after Hazard had opened the tournament with a 37 to 48 victory over Glasgow.

This year's tournament appeared to be a wide - open affair with no one contender among the 16 regional winners regarded as the team to beat.

The closest thing to a favorite, actual or sentimental, was Berea. The Pirates are in the big show for the first time, and made it in coach Billy Harrell's first season in spite of the fact they had no gymnasium until late in the season and played only five home games.

Pikeville, which won two games in overtime and then knocked off previously unbeaten Meade, Meade on the way to the 15th regional crown, was unbeatable being Gilliam's sharp - shooting last night.

The Panthers have averaged 78 points a game all season, and that's exactly what they hit last night as Gilliam netted 22 in the first half alone. The score was tied 17 times, the last time at 67-all with four minutes left.

Corky Withrow, Central City's brilliant center, scored 28 points but lost of three men on personal fouls hurt the Golden Tide.

Glasgow's Scotties put the pressure on Hazard for most of three quarters and held a 34-33 lead midway in the third period. Then Bulldog Gus Arnold Feltner hit three buckets in a row, and Hazard was out in front to stay.

High point man for Hazard was Johnny Cox, a senior center hailed by his home folks as one of the best in the state. He collected 25 points, while Billy Smith was pining Glasgow with 17.

Pikeville and Hazard will meet in a quarter - final game Friday afternoon.

Storm Promised Over Release Of Suppressed Yalta Papers

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17 (AP) — A political and diplomatic storm of hurricane force was blowing up today around the long-suppressed records of the Yalta conferences where the late President Roosevelt dealt Communist Russia into the war against Japan.

Yalta proved to be a good deal for the Russians. Their armies struck in the East only five days before Japan accepted unconditional surrender.

The State Department made the Yalta papers public Wednesday night in a hurry-up climax to a series of maneuvers which, like the Yalta record itself, was confusing and open to various interpretations. Also published at Malta where the late President Roosevelt met British Prime Minister Winston Churchill before proceeding to Yalta as Generalissimo Josef Stalin's guest.

There are shocks and some surprises for those at home and abroad in the Yalta documents. Germany may flinch to read of Mr. Roosevelt's "bloodthirsty" attitude toward them and the Yalta plan to dismember their nation.

Feared German Opposition

The State Department had delayed publication to avoid what was described as international complications. There was anxiety here and in Britain lest blunt Yalta references to Germany, as reviewed today, might strengthen German political opposition to a military alliance with the West.

The papers, belated the time and place when Stalin first agreed to enter the war against Japan. Republican spokesmen long have insisted that Mr. Roosevelt sold out China to Communism when he trusted the Soviet Union into the war in the East — even though he knew a month before he went to Yalta that the United States would have the A-bomb by Aug. 1. But Democrats have contended that Mr. Roosevelt was acting on urgent advice of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff to obtain speedy Russian entry. The dispute goes on.

France Dealt Out

Public opinion in France may react to the agreement of Mr. Roosevelt and Stalin that France should have no part in post-war administration of occupied Germany — although France might, perhaps, have a zone of her own, as a "kindness." Churchill demanded that France resume her place in post-war Europe. He said he had to think of the time when the Americans went home in "two years." FDR told him and Britain might need France again as a deference against Germany.

Publication of the Yalta papers promises some lively developments. The overall Yalta story, long have been known. But the details were secret. Much will remain so because the documents published Wednesday night admittedly were not complete, although they were certified as giving the most definitive and comprehensive picture possible at this time. The State Department said it had deleted no matter of substance.

The documents cannot fail to whip up again debate whether FDR was justified in making, at the expense of China, political and territorial concessions to persuade the Soviet Union to join the war against Japan.

They show that Mr. Roosevelt thought breaking Germany into five or seven different states would be "a good idea."

He was deeply concerned about Poland at the Yalta conference. The President told Churchill and Stalin that the Polish vote was big in the United States and he wanted at least "a gesture" to take back to the 48 million Americans of Polish extraction. But Stalin and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov finally beat down the British - American plan to have the Big Three ambassadors observe the post-war Polish elections to insure a free and honest ballot. Mr. Roosevelt backed down on that. The British protested to the last. Stalin also won on his demands for a slice of Eastern Poland.

Telephone And Rail Strikes Continuing

By UNITED PRESS

All trains were halted on a strike crippling railroad today and there were changes of more than 80 cable flashings in a nine-state telephone company walkout.

The bitter strikes against Louisville & Nashville Railroad and the Louisville & Nashville Telephone Company both went into their fourth day and idled at least 78,000 employees.

Elsewhere on the labor front, a marathon department store strike ended at Pittsburgh, Pa. Ford and union officials met for contract talks and a wildcat 18-man strike idled 6,000 workers at an Indiana Chrysler Corp. plant.

Damage Suit Filed

The strike of 10 AFL unions representing 15,000 non-operating employees against the L&N Railroad closed down the line's operations and prompted a $1,250,000 damage suit.

The company announced that all passenger trains had been cancelled, that no freight trains were running, and that all runs had been cancelled. In all, about 50 trains were affected.

The close-down announcement came a few hours after a Louisville, Ky., circuit judge dissolved a temporary restraining order which forbade operating employees — the men who actually run the railroads — to cross the picket lines.

Rail Strike Spreads

The strike against the L&N and two subsidiaries forced at least 35 coal mines to close down in Kentucky's Harlan and Bell counties. At least 8,000 miners were laid off and another 5,000 were reported idled in Perry and Letcher counties.

The walkout also threatened a major traffic disruption at the railroad hub of Atlanta, Ga., as a judge refused to issue an injunction against the spread of the strike to the Atlanta joint terminals and two other rail lines.

Meanwhile, 1,500 to 2,000 Atlanta employees — joined — the walkout against the L&N and its subsidiary the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis.

The nation's other major labor battle idled 50,000 employees of the Southern Bell Telephone company in nine states.

The company reported more than 80 cases of sabotage against its cables in five states — 50 in Atlanta alone — and offered rewards totalling $20,000 for the capture of those responsible.

Survey Shows Dairy Income In Carlisle

A survey of dairy farmers in Carlisle County indicated the average graded producer sold over $5,000 worth of milk last year.
Most of the dairymen are planing to increase the size of their herds, according to UK County Agent J. R. Davis.

The survey brought out that many dairymen had, under grass pastures last season, and also put up silage. As a result they spent less than 10 percent of their dairy income for grain and hay.

Sports Patrol

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP) — There'll be moaning far and wide if baseball's "supernatural jinx" strikes with its usual fury in 1955.

One of every three in last year's tremendous rookie crop is likely to fall victim to the mysterious hex.
Obviously, that spells trouble because so many 1954 freshmen hold key positions as sponophones with Bob Grim of the Yankees and Wally Moon of the Cardinals heading the list.

The jinx was active last year but there were so many notable exceptions nobody thought about it much.
Willie Mays of the Giants came out of the Army for his second full season and dished off with personal honors before Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers hit as well and fielded even better than he did in his sensational rookie year.

No Fear Of Jinx

Ray Jablonski, then with the Cardinals, and his teammate Rip Reynolds, performed as if they'd never heard of the jinx — and maybe they hadn't. Ruben Gomez of the Giants, Bob Keegan of the White Sox and Harvey Haddix of the Cardinals were so effective the jinx nearly forgot about some of the last really smitten by the jinx.

Among those in this unlucky group were Bob Buhl and Jim Pentleton of the Braves, Tom Un-dolph of the Senators and Don Larsen, then with Baltimore, who became the losing pitcher in the majors.

Contenters and tail-enders alike can be hit hard this year, since the 1954 rookie group coming up as sponophones not only had rare quality but also quantity.

Grim, a 20-6 winner as a Yankee rookie, must be a "big" pitcher again if Casey Stengel expects to win another pennant. And Casey has another sponophone to worry about — Bill Moose. Stengel's outfielder hit 340 as a part-timer last year. Stengel hopes he can do it full time as the answer at last to his painful first base problems.

Sponophones, Loom Key
In addition to Moose, who jumped right into Enos Slaughter's outfield spot, the Cardinals are counting heavily on sponophones Brooks Lawrence and Alex Grammas.

The Indians have a pair in Al

Smith and Dave Pope. The Tigers have Al Kaline and Bill Tuttle in their outfield. The Cubs hope the jinx stays far, far away from their fancy double play duo — Ernie Banks and Gene Aker.

Other top hands, now spono-phores, include Jim Fingen, Spook Jacobs and Wilmer Shantz of the Athletics; Hank Aaron of the Braves; Dick Groat, who qualifies as an Army returnee; Don Moss of the Indians; Art Fowler of the Redlegs; Bob Skinner of the Pirates; Harry Agganis and Frank Sullivan of the Red Sox and Dean
Sizemore of the Senators.

That's a few of the all-star cast of 1954 rookies, now coming around for the second time.

If one of every three runs into the jinx, there'll be plenty of moaning for this year there are far more than the usual number of potential victims.

CROP ACREAGES INCREASED

Warren Thompson, Hickman county agent for the University of Kentucky, gives the following estimates of increased production of crops not under allotment:
soybeans, 14 percent; spring oats, 20 percent; fall-seeded barley and buckwheat, about 35 percent each; sudan grass, 18 to 25 percent;
rape, 35 percent; sweet potato,
25 to 30 percent; and strawberries, 50 to 150 percent.

New Plan Helps Farmers Pay Conservation Costs

Recognizing that before a complete job is accomplished, conservation on a particular field may require several steps taking more than a year to complete, the Agricultural Conservation Program has been modified to permit payment for partial completion of certain practices.

These are known as the multi-unit or "package" practices. Where a farmer is not able to complete the entire package in one year, cost-sharing assistance may be given for the portions completed during the program year.

The farmer must agree to complete the remaining parts and secure approval of the county committee. He can spread the cost of the necessary steps over more than one year.

An example of a package practice is the establishment of a forest stand for erosion control, weeds control, protection, or for forestry purposes, including shelterbelts or farm woodlots. To carry out this practice a farmer may need to prepare the land, plant trees in a field of alfalfa, clover and grasses, explaining his operations to the judges.

Green Pastures contest stands

they are completed.
The ACP is administered locally by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committees. All farmers are eligible to request cost-sharing for conservation measures which have been approved as being in the public interest.

Approval of practices must be requested from the ASC committee before work starts. If ACP is to share in the cost since the sowing of grass and legume seeds for ground cover is involved in many of the ACP practices, these seeds should be acquired as soon as the needs are known. A farmer should contact his local ASC committee for information on how ACP can help him meet his conservation problems.

Experiment Station Seeks Ways to Have Better Forage Crops

Under an enlarged program, made possible by additional funds provided by the General Assembly in 1954, the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky is expanding and intensifying forage crop breeding and testing, as well as pasture studies, according to a statement by Dr. G. T. Webster, head of the Agronomy Department.

The program will include breeding and selecting for better adapted and more nutritious grasses and legumes, he said. Included in the studies will be some of the newer strains of grasses and legumes developed in Kentucky, along with some strains from other states.

Testing areas will be established at several locations in the state where scientists will observe grass and legumes under a wide range of soil and climatic conditions.

Dr. Webster noted that Kenland red clover, developed at the Kentucky Experiment Station, now is being grown in more than 20 states. Other forage crops have been improved. Work now under way indicates a good possibility of improving the palatability of Kentucky fescue.

THIS MAY HELP YOU SAVE MONEY ON YOUR TAXES

Most people will find income tax filing time this year a little easier on their pocketbooks—and their nerves. For one thing, the new tax laws reflect reduction of about 10 per cent in tax rates that went into effect
Jan. 1, 1954.

But just as important are the many changes aimed at helping people who particularly need relief—that were put into effect when Congress last August overhauled the tax code.
Its first freshening up in more than 50 years.

In a series of nine short, illustrated features, Central Press will cover some of the major changes that may help save you money.

Bess Myerson Says Expect Too Much Of Beauty Winners

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP)—The folks back home expect too much of local beauty contest winners, a former Miss America complains, so Manhattan is full of beauties in heart-breaking pursuit of big time careers.

They try to get a television part or a stage role or a model's job on the strength of their silver cups and second-place ribbons.

"They're embarrassed to go back home without doing something big," explained Bess Myerson, Miss America of 1943. "They got such a big sendoff from the hometown ... you know, roses from the mayor and all that sort of thing. They feel they just can't go back and teach school or work in a department store."

Bess, a six-foot beauty with a nice television job, is happily married and has a six-year-old daughter, but she is daily reminded by telephone calls of the hazards of winning or almost winning beauty contests.

"Girls call me because they know I won a beauty contest once and ask me to help them get into television," she said. "I'm embarrassed. I can't help them."

She recalled she taught piano lessons to help pay her way through college, and her friends were impressed with her talent. Then she won the Miss America contest, and later, after she was married, she started teaching piano lessons again.

"All of a sudden teaching was like scrubbing the floor or something," Bess said. "The same friends wanted to know how I was teaching piano lessons. They I was teaching piano lessons. They

Americans Eat Well At No Greater Cost

The kind of food that cost 25 percent of a typical family's take-home pay in the 1920's could be bought today for 17 percent of the average family income, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

American families continue to spend about one-fourth of their income for food, just as they did in the twenties, but they are getting a greater variety of foods with higher nutritive value. Modern diets contain more of the protective foods—such as meat, milk, eggs, fruit, green vegetables, and many more items—are purchased in ready-to-eat or ready-to-cook form.

FRESHEN VEGETABLES

She credits the fact that she got her feet back on solid ground after the whirlwind year of being the nation's top beauty to "coming back home and getting married."

Her home was New York City.

"The best thing that can happen to a beauty contest winner is to be engaged," the statuesque brunette said with a smile. "Then when the fuss dies down she can get married. She has a good excuse for not having a glamorous career."

Bess gave up her hopes to be a concert pianist because it took too much time away from her family. Now she co-stars on a daytime quiz show, "The Big Payoff."

"I got out of it all pretty unscathed," she admitted. "But it isn't easy."

Pie For The President

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS—Pie for the President is removed from the oven by Champion Cherry Pie Queen Marjorie Campbell, 17-year-old high school senior from Red Hook, New York. Pretty, vivacious Marjorie won her title in a stiff competition with pie baking champions from all 48 states and Hawaii.

Following the national competition, Marjorie flew to Washington, D. C. where she presented her winning pie to President Eisenhower. Here's the recipe for this winning pie which was named the best cherry pie of the year.

Champion Cherry Pie

Filling:
4 cups canned red sour cherries
2/3 cup cherry juice
3 tablespoons cornstarch
Combine cornstarch, sugar and salt and mix well. Add cherry juice slowly, stirring to make it smooth. Cook until thickened, add cherries and cool while preparing the crust.

Crust:
2 cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon salt
Sift and measure flour, add salt and sift again. Add 1/3 cup of the prepared flour to water to form a paste. Blend the lard into the flour until crumbly. Now add the paste mixture blending it in with a fork until it goes together well. Shape into a ball and divide into two equal portions. Roll out one portion until 1/4-inch thick, spread on 1/2 tablespoon additional lard and fold into a pocketbook form. Roll to size of pan and place in pan. Take second portion of dough and roll out the same way into half-inch strips. Four cherry mixture into pan, spread each pie with pastry strips, arranged like a lattice and brush with egg wash and put on pie tin.

Leo The Lip Still The Same Old Lip

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK 10.—That old saw concerning the inability to dry clean a leopard apparently still holds today in the case of Leonidas Ernest Durocher.

The New York Giants' dandy little leader, or little dandy, if you prefer, of late has been avoiding controversy with almost agonizing aplomb. Whether it was mental or muscular, the erstwhile 'Lip' refused even a small portion of shurbar.

Why, the man wouldn't even argue with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

A Peaceful Settlement

Just last week, Leo was given an opening to start a real debate with Manager Walt Alston of the Brooklyn Dodgers, remarks which Durocher allegedly made concerning several Dodger players. Leo, instead, spread his new brand of oil on the frothy waters and purportedly quoth:

"Leave us settle this thing on the greenward."

But, it is apparent, the congregation was a bit premature.

Now it can be told: The Lip is still the Lip.

Confirmation came Sunday when the Giants played an exhibition game with the Indians, pitcher Al Worthington plunked a fast ball against Wally Westlake's head and Al Rosen and Durocher became involved in a bit of head butting.

Westlake and Worthington apologized. Durocher and Rosen didn't and it is considered highly improbable that they will.

Back In Shell

Durocher, who has known trouble in large quantities throughout a career rarely marked by serenity, after the incident was back in his latest role of hall fellow misunderstood.

"Sure, I kid Rosen now and then," Leo groused. "He wears those 'short' sleeves to show his muscles and we yell at him: 'Flex your muscles, Al. Show 'em how strong you are.' But that's all."

Leo insists that he has warned his Giants against needing the Indians about the World Series. You can understand why he shied away from an argument with the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Giants, after all, are the defending champions will be the

Both Flowers and Food Thrive in This Garden

When space is limited an attractive garden can be made where vegetables and flowers grow together.

A treat for eyes as well as appetites, can be enjoyed by some gardeners who place on their tables flowers as well as vegetables grown in their own gardens.

Not that a well-kept vegetable garden with its straight rows of plants in varying tones of green, needs floral adornment. It delights the heart of its possessor to look upon it.

But in the eyes of a visiting friend it may be even more beautiful, if among the vegetable plants and along the paths and boundaries, flowers have been skillfully placed.

Flowers like to grow in a vegetable garden. They like the sunshine, the regular watering, abundant room, the clean cultivation. These are conditions rarely found in crowded borders, too often overshadowed.

This is so true that many flower specialists, who start out growing their favorites in decorative borders, for landscape effect, soon abandon this method in favor of straight rows, which are so easy to keep clear of weeds, to water and fertilize.

defending champions will be the National League's prime target this season. Obviously it won't help any to have Brooklyn mad to boot. As for the incident with Cleveland, it probably merely serves to show that boys will be boys and that the Lip is still the Lip.

WARNS OF 'ASIATIC MUNICH'

REP. JAMES P. RICHARDS, House foreign affairs chairman, points to map of the Orient in Washington as he warns House members that any agreement by the U. S. which would abandon Manila and Quemoy islands to the Chinese Communists in return for a cease-fire would be "an Asiatic Munich." Said Richards, "We lost tremendous prestige—what Asiatics call face—by the truce we signed in Korea and still more by what happened in Indochina, where half the country was given up to the Chinese Reds. We can't stand another loss like that." (International Soundphoto)

Bess Myerson Says Expect Too Much Of Beauty Winners

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP)—The folks back home expect too much of local beauty contest winners, a former Miss America complains.

So Manhattan is full of beauties in heartbreaking pursuit of big time careers.

They try to get a television part or a stage role or a model's job on the strength of their silver cups and second-place ribbons.

"They're embarrassed to go back home without doing something big," explained Bess Myerson, Miss America of 1945. "They got such a big sendoff from the hometown."

They know, those from the mayor and all that sort of thing. They feel they just can't go back and teach school or work in a department store."

Bess, a six-foot beauty with a nice television job, is happily married and has a six-year-old daughter, but she is daily reminded by telephone calls of the hazards of winning or almost winning beauty contests.

"Girls call me because they know I won a beauty contest once and ask me to help them get into television," she said. "I'm embarrassed. I can't help them."

She recalled she taught piano lessons to help pay her way through college, and her friends were impressed with her talent. Then she won the Miss America contest, and later, after she was married, she started teaching piano lessons again.

"All of a sudden teaching was like scrubbing the floor or something," Bess said. "The same friends wanted to know how come I was teaching piano lessons. They

Americans Eat Well At No Greater Cost

The kind of food that cost 25 percent of a typical family's take-home pay in the 1920's could be bought today for 17 percent of the average family income, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

American families continue to spend about one-fourth of their income for food, just as they did in the twenties, but they are getting a greater variety of foods with higher nutritive value. Modern diets contain more of the protective foods—such as meat, milk, eggs, fruit, green vegetables, and many more items are purchased in ready-to-eat or ready-to-cook form.

To freshen slightly wilted vegetables soak them for an hour or so in cold water to which some vinegar or lemon juice has been added.

She credits the fact that she got her feet back on solid ground after the whirlwind year of being the nation's top beauty to "coming back home and getting married."

Her home was New York City. "The best thing that can happen to a beauty contest winner is to be engaged," the statuesque brunette said with a smile. "Then when the fuss dies down she can get married. She has a good excuse for not having a glamorous career."

Bess gave up her hopes to be a concert pianist because it took too much time away from her family. Now she co-stars on a daytime quiz show, "The Big Payoff."

Pie For The President

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS—Pie for the President is removed from the oven by Champion Cherry Pie Queen Marjorie Campbell, 17-year-old high school senior from Red Hook, New York. Pretty, vivacious Marjorie won her title in a stiff competition with pie baking champions from all 48 states and Hawaii.

Following the national competition, Marjorie flew to Washington, D. C. where she presented her winning pie to President Eisenhower. Here's the recipe for this winning pie which was named the best cherry pie of the year.

Champion Cherry Pie
Filling: 4 cups canned red sour cherries 3/4 cup sugar
2 1/2 cup cherry juice 1/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons cornstarch 4 drops almond extract
Combine cornstarch, sugar and salt and mix well. Add cherry juice slowly, stirring to make it smooth. Cook until thickened, add cherries and cool while preparing the crust.
Crust: 2 cups pastry flour 3/4 cup Swift's Silverleaf lard
1 teaspoon salt 1/3 cup water
Sift and measure flour, add salt and sift again. Add 1/3 cup of the prepared flour to water to form a paste. Blend the lard into the flour until crumbly. Now add the paste mixture blending it in with a fork until it goes together well. Shape into a ball and divide into two equal portions. Roll out one portion until 1/4-inch thick, spread on 1/2 teaspoon oil and lard and fold into a pocketbook form. Roll to size of pan and place in pan. Take second portion of dough and roll out the same way, cut into half-inch strips. Pour cherry mixture into pie pan and top with pastry strips, arranged in a lattice pattern. Bake in preheated oven at 425° F. for first 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350° and bake 20 minutes more. Put on pie plate and serve.

Leo The Lip Still The Same Old Lip

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK UP—That old saw concerning the inability to dry clean a leopard apparently still holds today in the case of Leonidas Ernest Durocher.

The New York Giants' dandy little leader, or little dandy, if you prefer, of late has been avoiding controversy with almost agonizing aplomb. Whether it was mental or muscular, the erstwhile 'Lip' refused even a small portion of shu-barb.

Why, the man wouldn't even argue with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

A Peaceful Settlement

Just last week, Leo was given an opening to start a real debate with Manager Walt Alston of the Brooklyn anent remarks which Durocher allegedly made concerning several Dodger players. Leo, instead, spread his new brand of oil on the frothy waters and purportedly quoth:

'Leave us settle this thing on the greensward.'

But, it is apparent, the congregation was a bit premature.

Now, it can be told: The Lip is still the Lip.

Confirmation came Sunday when the Giants played an exhibition game with the Indians, pitcher Al Worthington plunked a fast ball against Wally Westlake's head and Al Rosen and Durocher became involved in a bit of head butting.

Westlake and Worthington apologized. Durocher and Rosen didn't and it is considered highly improbable that they will.

Back In Shell

Sure, I kid Rosen now and then, Leo deplored. 'He wears those "short" sleeves' to show his muscles and we yell at him: 'Flex your muscles, Al. Show 'em how strong you are.' But that's all.'

Leo insists that he has warned his Giants against needing the Indians about the World Series. You can understand why he shied away from an argument with the Brooklyn. The Giants, after all, as the defending champions will be the

When space is limited an attractive garden can be made where vegetables and flowers grow together.

A treat for eyes as well as appetites, can be enjoyed by some gardeners who place on their tables flowers as well as vegetables grown in their own gardens.

Not that a well-kept vegetable garden with its straight rows of plants in varying tones of green, needs floral adornment. It delights the heart of its possessor to look upon it.

But in the eyes of a visiting friend it may be even more beautiful, if among the vegetable plants and along the paths and boundaries, flowers have been skillfully placed.

Flowers like to grow in a vegetable garden. They like the sunshine, the regular watering, abundant room, the clean cultivation. These are conditions rarely found in crowded borders, too often overshadowed.

This is so true that many flower specialists, who start out growing their favorites in decorative borders, for landscape effect, soon abandon this method in favor of straight rows, which are so easy to keep clear of weeds, to water and fertilize.

defending champions will be the National League's prime target this season. Obviously it won't help any to have Brooklyn mad to boot.

As for the incident with Cleveland, it probably merely serves to prove that boys will be boys and that the Lip is still the Lip.

Not everybody in Calloway county subscribes to The Ledger & Times but nearly everybody reads it.

WARNS OF 'ASIATIC MUNICH'

REP. JAMES P. RICHARDS, House foreign affairs chairman, points to map of the Orient in Washington as he warns House members that any agreement by the U. S. which would abandon Matsua and Quemoy islands to the Chinese Communists in return for a cease-fire would be "an Asiatic Munich." Said Richards, "We lost tremendous prestige—what Asiatics call face—by the truce we signed in Korea and still more by what happened in Indochina, where half the country was given up to the Chinese Reds. We can't stand another loss like that." (International Soundphoto)

Tell Her It's MURDER

SYNOPSIS

Jim Andrus had served a prison term for the vehicular slaying of eight-year-old Roger Pelham, whose lively mother, Regina Pelham, Jim had been about to wed. Overindulgence during his bachelor days had blacked out Andrus' mind, and he had awakened next morning to find the dead child in the driveway of the Pelham home in suburb of New York. Unmistakably Andrus' car had killed the boy, but Jim was not ready to admit it. He drove his car that night, took now in his New York apartment, and his loyal Aunt Ade had hope to clear the Andrus name. Jim's silver car had vanished during his blackout. He hopes to retrieve it, for some busy suburban wife tells him that she had seen on that fateful night. Aunt Ade informs Inspector McKee of New York homicide to enter the case, and Andrus is further rewarded by finding his silver flask in a pawnshop near the Pelham home.

CHAPTER FIVE

ANDRUS' aunt, to be taxi stand outside the gates. There was no cab in the passengers from the train. He had arrived on were gone except for one woman pacing to and fro. She had evidently expected to be met. Her arms were full of bundles. Her face was faintly familiar. She looked at Andrus differently. Then her cheeks went first red and then gray. She turned away and took three running steps along the walk. One of her parcels dropped. Andrus picked it up and recognized her. She was Mrs. Cassey, Roger's nurse.

A car that needed a coat of paint came down the slope and stopped. Susan Dwight was at the wheel. Mrs. Cassey snatched the parcel from Andrus without a word and got hastily into the back of the car. Susan and Andrus looked at each other. Andrus took the flask from his pocket. He said, "I found this in a pawnshop across from the station. Know anyone named Michael Brodsky, Miss Dwight?" Susan was startled at the sight of Andrus. So he was still hanging around up here. She looked straight ahead of her through the windshield. "No, I don't know any Michael Brodsky. Why?"

"Because Michael Brodsky pawned this flask two weeks after your nephew died."

"I never heard of anyone named Brodsky," Susan said and drove off.

A cab drifted down the hill. He got into it and said, "44 Stone St." Susan stopped for a red light.

"Do you know any Michael Brodsky?" she asked.

It seemed to her that Lulu Cassey nestled before she said no. Everybody knew everybody else on the Hill. That evening Susan asked a dozen people who dropped in for cocktails about Brodsky. She asked Edith and Frederick and Barry, who had come up to take her to a dance at the inn, and Dave Redgate and Dave's sister, Amy. And Dr. Fung, the Yonkers medical examiner, who was a friend of Dave's. No result. No one knew any Michael Brodsky. She told the story to a group while Regina was out of the room. Amy Redgate, one of their oldest friends, said, "Seems to me I do know it, Sue, but I can't connect it up."

And there for 24 hours the matter rested.

Forty-four Stone street was a broken-down lodging house on the north edge of Yonkers. There was no Brodsky on any of the bells in the vestibule. He rang them all, went to every door, but no one had ever heard of a Michael Brodsky. A year and a half ago? Nobody had lived there that long. He asked all neighboring stores, in a garage, he talked to the policeman on the corner. Nothing.

At 8 o'clock he gave it up, went downstairs and used some medicine to eat. He went to the movies, then took a room in a hotel near the center of town. Had he run into Brodsky on that night a year and a half ago? Was Brodsky the man who had admonished him when he threw the flask? "What do you want to do with this like that for?" Had Brodsky found the flask on his own? Or was it another man and, if so, where and when?

In the morning he went a bellboy out for fresh linen and a razor, took a shower, fingered his chin, and didn't use the razor. He'd do better with his face as it was in that neighborhood.

It wasn't until almost half past 4 that afternoon that he got his first break. 44 Stone street was in the middle of the block. At the east end of it, a building on the corner was being pulled down. Dust and workmen and wheelbarrows; a sign with "Joe's Tavern" lettered on it was tilted against hoisting. Where Brodsky's name had yielded nothing, Joe's Tavern was a tinsmith that provided instant response. The first person he spoke to, the proprietor of a nearby delicatessen, said, "Joe's place he moved. The new place is down two and turn left."

At Joe's place, the owner had never heard of a Michael Brodsky nor had any of the other men. Andrus carried a beer to a booth, sat back, lit a cigar, and looked up. A man with a scholarly face was standing at the end of the table. "May I?" He waved a courtly fingered hand that came out of a frayed coat sleeve with a rip in it. "Yes," Andrus said, "sure, sit down. What'll you have?"

Over a drink the man, who introduced himself as John Steadman, said, "I heard you talking to Joe."

Andrus sat forward. "You know Brodsky?"

"Not by that name, sir. But I'm wondering. Would you perhaps be alright to Mr. Brodsky?"

Andrus learned that Midnight Mike wasn't dead, but very much alive. Steadman had seen him less than a week ago. Mike had a friend who lived at 44 Stone. He lived in the house opposite. I forgot his friend's name. Dead, sir. Midnight Mike had gotten his name because he always went home at before 12 o'clock, drunk or sober. "He did odd jobs for people," Steadman said. "As a side line he kept goats and sold their milk."

"Where does he live?"

"1." Steadman said, "was there only once, some years ago." Midnight Mike had a shack out in the hills beyond what had once been the garbage dump. He had built the shack himself. Andrus ought to find him there between 5 and 7. He generally went home to feed the goats after work and before he went out for the evening.

You go to the end of Ramsey road, then, through the woods. There is a path. Anyone will direct you. After a few more questions Andrus thanked him, gave money to the tinsmith, said, "drinks for Mr. Steadman," and left the tavern.

Andrus had a hard time finding Mike's place. Darkness came, and he would never have found it except for an airfield beacon. There was movement near him in the darkness. He turned fast, but not fast enough. A hard blow knocked him flat. A loud snorting breath, the rattle of a chain and a smell, strong and pungent; it was one of Midnight Mike's pets.

Scrambling to his feet, Andrus leaped up some steps and knocked on the door at the shack. What there was no answer he opened the door and went inside. The blackness was stygian. He struck one of his last few matches. A rough table with an oil lamp on it sprang into being out of the blackness at his elbow, clean and finished. He lit the lamp. The single room was about 12 by 14. The furniture consisted of the table, an armchair with the stuffing coming out in a dozen places, two straight chairs with rungs and slats, a stove, a few kitchen utensils hung on the wall beside it, and a narrow cot covered with faded quilts in the opposite corner. There was nothing to go but wait.

New Rose Is Named Love Song

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 16.—There is romance in the rose family according to Mrs. Gordon Fisher, of the Arnold Arboretum, Cambridge, Mass. And she has some petals to prove it—on exhibit at the National Capital Flower and Garden Show, now in progress.

Mrs. Fisher has spent a lot of time up there in Massachusetts introducing one rose seed to another and finally has come up with a blossom she calls "Love Song," named she says "because a beautiful rose is like a love song." "Love Song," the rose, Mrs. Fisher said, is a cross between "Peace" as the female parent and "Orange Naissau" as the male parent. The mating was just like that, although it didn't happen by accident. Mrs. Fisher and her rose experts had a proper blueprint.

Many Roses Unique
Roses are funny, the lady said. "Every seed in a rose hip seed capsule is different. And if you experiment you can come up with a unique flower. That is what I did with the 'Love Song' and also some other roses." Mrs. Fisher also is proud of the fact that her firm has developed a new rose that is a beautiful frink in the flower clan—a "one lavender. People who have seen it are doing oh's and ah's over it. And Mamie Eisenhower, who was a-bred with the roses, said a bundle of them at the White House when it was learned that she could not think the flowers showy. "I've never seen a rose of nature," Mrs. Fisher whistles a green thumb. "It doesn't make a new flower, from a blue point. She sets her hands into the good earth."

Roses Like People
The "Love Song" of which she is so proud, is bi-colored. It is yellow on the outside of the petals and a salmon red on the inside. As it ages, changes in color to a salmon pink. Around it smells like a rose. "Roses are like people," Mrs. Fisher said. "There are millions and millions of roses in the world but no two of them are alike. They all have personalities. There are identical twins in the rose family, but like all identical twins if you get to know them you can tell one from another."

There are other things at the show. Everything from sunflowers to a dandelion.

There are violets and petunias. Not a single dandelion. And everyone knows no garden can thing in it, but what I was looking for—a dandelion.

Suggestion Is Dynamite

LIBRARY, Pa. (AP)—C. Osborn made a suggestion that was really dynamite. His remark probably saved the lives of himself and his family.

A neighbor, Joseph A. Schorr, was wondering Sunday how to remove the stump of a tree blown down in his yard by a thunderstorm last week.

"I've got some dynamite in my cellar," Osborn said.

Harold Lowe, of Port Vue, a friend who chanced to be visiting with age, and Reed said the nitrogen content had seeped out into the box.

"Hoot," the slightest shock, or friction could have set the whole thing off," Reed said.

The Army demolitions men then took Osborn off his hot seat. They carried the dynamite gingerly to a rear lot and touched it off.

The blast scattered dirt and mud for several hundred yards and tore a hole in the ground five feet across and three feet deep.
